

In spite of the present Navy-wide economy cutbacks, qualified personnel are needed more than ever in the Naval Air Reserve at NAS Los Alamitos. Military cutbacks, the Defense department states, place new emphasis on the reserve forces as the nation's first line of defense.

In the ranks of the forty-odd reserve squadrons at NAS Los Alamitos there are approximately 800 vacancies. Reservists can earn part time pay and points toward retirement by training with organized reserve squadrons one weekend each month, and for two weeks training duty each year.

As an indication of the station's permanency, a new helicopter squadron will be commissioned in mid-November.

There are billets available for pilots, ground officers and enlisted men. Interested personnel are invited to contact the station for further information.
